—BILL HARTMAN NEW EDITOR— MR. CHRIST TO PUBLISH NEW BOOK

Contains Works By Many Authors

On January 1, of this year, Professor Francis L. Christ of the Loyola College English department realized the culmination of five years persistent endeavor when the Appleton, Century, Croft Co. published his new book entitled "American Catholicism and the Intellectual Ideal."

Professor Christ explained that this is a book of the type known as a controlled research text. Books of this type contain the work of many writers on a subject, collected in a single volume.

An Aid To The Frosh

It is Mr. Christ's hope that this book will be widely used by freshmen writing research papers and will reduce the time they spend in gathering research material. Mr. Christ feels that they can use the time better in writing a good paper.

"To Set The World On Fire"

Professor Christ remarked that he felt the students, particularly the Catholic Students, should take pride in the wealth of material in this book and "set the world on fire intellectually" by the inspiration received by the inspiration of popes and bishops contained therein.

Professor Christ received his initial inspiration to write the book from a speech delivered by Msgr. John T. Ellis on "American Catholicism and the Intellectual Life." The speech was reprinted in the magazine "Thought."

Officers Glick and O'Donnell admit Brad McNally and his date to "Prohibition Daze."

Council Debates Activities, Committees, Spirit Medal

At the final meeting of the Student Council for the first semester, a full slate of topics was discussed by the members, including several inquiries on the possibility of resurrecting some "lifeless" extra-curricular activities, various committee reports and the feasibility of awarding a Spirit Medal at Loyola College.

Spot News

Dazzling Daze

Congratulations are in order to Dick Prodey, the Senior Class President, and John Healy, the Chairman of the Decorating Committee, on their superb job of decorating at the "Prohibition Daze" dance. The occasion was a most enjoyable one for everyone attending the affair. In addition to the varied costumes which enhanced the scene, the lighting and musical effects achieved were most original. The prizes for the most original costumes were won by Wade Bowman, who was dressed as Jack Dempsey, and his date, who was dressed in a flapper outfit made out of an Idaho potato burlap sack.

Gifts For Joe

Father Bourbon suggests that a pertinent birthday present for Joe Cerra would be "a little more assistance in cleaning up the cafe."

Advent of Lent

The students are reminded that the holy season of Lent begins on February 15th. Although the new year's resolutions might seem still new and maybe even broken, students

Three Sophomores Take Top Posts

With the publication of this issue, the duties of Editor-in-Chief of the Greyhound will be officially assumed by Bill Hartman, who replaces Bob Reiter, the retiring editor. Along with Bill's, numerous other promotions in conjunction with the various important duties of the Greyhound have been announced.

Academically Qualified

As a member of the Junior class, Bill Hartman is an Engineering Physics major whose academic achievements are more than commendable. This is his second year on the Greyhound staff, and Bill is also a member of the Physics Club.

Assuming the position of Associate Editor will be John Q. Feller, who is a junior History major. This is his first year on the Greyhound. Besides this duty, he is also a member of the Green and Gray, the History Academy, the I.R.C., the P.R.'s, and the A. U. S. A. John stepped up from his last position as the leading news writer.

New News Editor

Moving up to the job of News Editor will be Henry Becker, a sophomore English major. This is Henry's second year on the paper. In his freshman year he was the secretary of his class, and he is presently a member of the year-book staff and the Glee Club. The Assistant News Editor will be Frank Walsh, a Freshman English major.

As the new Features Editor, Pete Genovese, a sophomore English major, has been a member of the Greyhound since his freshman year. If last year's work is indicative of his future achievements as Features Editor, the second page should become even more interesting and enjoyable this semester. Pete is a member of the History Academy and the I.R.C. As Pete's assistant Bill Kohlhepp should prove very able.

Business Boys

Handling the business aspect of the school paper, Vince Baldini, a sophomore Economics major, will be the Business Manager. Vince is a member of the History Academy. Assisting Vince will be Bob Bell, a sophomore History Major who

Farewell

by Bob Reiter, retiring
Editor-in-Chief

Ever since the Greyhound became a weekly publication, a year and a half ago, Monday afternoon has been the most hectic part of the week for me. That is the time when the paper is put together and taken to the printers.

It is hard to believe that my time is up, and that I am now no longer directly associated with the Greyhound. But each Monday afternoon I will be wondering how the new staff is doing in their workshop in the student union building.

There are a lot of "thank you's" in order. First to Mr. Jon O'Brien, S.J., now at Woodstock College, the moderator of the paper during the first half of my tenure; and Father Lawler, this year's moderator, go my grateful thanks for all that they put up with. Thanks to Tim Himmelheber who did more than his share of the work. Thanks to Rol Stum and Pete Cooke, Sports; John Quinn and Pete Genovese, Features; Henry Becker and Sam Levin, News; and Larry Parr, Business Manager, for a job well done. Thanks to John Feller who wrote so much of the copy, and finally thanks to Bill Hartman, the new Editor-in-Chief, who makes my leaving the paper so much easier.

As a final word, I want to wish the best of luck to a fine editor, Bill Hartman, and to a very dependable staff, and I am sure that with their tireless effort that they will produce the best Greyhound yet.

Thank You, Mr. Reiter

Putting out a weekly newspaper involves a great deal of planning, hard work, and self-sacrifice. The heaviest burden rests with the man who holds the position of Editor-in-Chief. The main difficulty with which the Editor must face is the time element. If his job were merely one of the overseer, alternating directives and commands, he would no doubt find his work rather pleasant, but this is not the case.

Just one year ago, Bob Reiter assumed the position of Editor-in-Chief of the Greyhound. In addition to the many responsibilities which he inherited from his predecessor, Bob voluntarily added to them. Under Bob's leadership, the Greyhound became a weekly publication. In addition, the staff was nearly doubled. Yet in spite of these unnecessary changes, or rather because of them, Bob Reiter was able to put out a paper of which all his fellow Loyolans are proud.

Letters To The Editor

Dear Sir:

This letter is in regard to the statement concerning the Student Council and its activity, or rather lack of activity, made by Mr. John Feller in a recent edition of the Greyhound. I heartily agree with Mr. Feller. As far as I can see, the Student Council is devoid of any originality or resoluteness of action.

Unlike Mr. Feller, I cannot be accused of never attending any Student Council meetings. Also I might add that this accusation was in the form of an anonymous bulletin without the prescribed stamp of the Dean of Men. At least the writer or writers of this bulletin should have had the courtesy if not the courage to sign their names to it.

But of more importance is Mr. Feller's charge. The Student Council meetings that I have witnessed were a hodgepodge of facetious remarks, parliamentary bickering, and general disorganization. Whether the Student Council actually does anything or not is the issue here. In addition there is the question of just who runs the Council. Is it the students or the administration?

I hope in the near future the Student Council will answer my questions—not in words but in deeds.

Gene Nelka—'62

Dear Sir:

Recently a quite unwarranted attack was made on... Mr. John Feller. The attack came as a result of an article in Mr. Feller's column, "Let Me At 'Em." I cannot personally vouch for the accuracy of Mr. Feller's statements, but, knowing of his reputation as an historian, I would rather be inclined to accept them at face value.

One point that I feel should be cleared up is the signing of the attack "Junior Class Officers." To my knowledge there was no poll of the members of the class, yet the attack would seem to imply that this was the opinion of the entire class. If this was merely the personal opinion of these officers, then why did they sign it this way, hiding behind their titles. (It has been brought to my attention that several of the class officers were not even consulted before this letter was issued. If I am up on my law, technically this constitutes forgery.) I hope that the officers will clarify their "official" stand.

Joseph B. Bowman—'62

Dear Sir:

It seems as though the season for starting ridiculous controversies is upon us once again. If Mr. Feller has any more garbage to print, let's hope that he will back it up with some concrete evidence.

Joseph P. McCurdy, Jr.
Junior Soc. Sec. Rep.

Dear Sir:

I am sure that everyone remembers the article of last week's Greyhound, "Counsel for Council," which caused quite a furor among some circles, along with some red faces and hot collars. I say nothing pro or con about the article which, nonetheless, calls for an investigation of the facts; but I am concerned with the treatment of the author. It came to my attention Friday afternoon as I left the cafe that a letter was posted on the activities board concerning this able and talented man. As I read this letter, I was very much dismayed. Not only was it a criticism of the author's article, but in my opinion it was defamation of character on the part of the junior class officers. If criticism was in order, it need not have been of derogatory nature. I can see no justification for the insinuations that Mr. Feller is at times "tipsy" or in effect a drunken bum. Must these leaders of the junior class resort to such tactics? I cannot see how these "men of Loyola" could stoop so low. It seems to me that Mr. Feller is one of the too few students who will stand on his two feet and voice his opinions publicly. Have the junior class "leaders" never heard of freedom of the press? It is my opinion that these "men of Loyola" owe Mr. Feller a public apology, and if they want to criticize, let them take a look at their own tactics.

Tom Opitz—'61

Dear Sir:

It is the opinion of this student that Jack Feller's opinions of the Student Council are just and correct. About a month ago, a proposal was made to the Council concerning the taking of only one major test in one day. The Council was asked to pass a resolution and forward it to the Committee on Student Affairs for administrative action. To date, the Committee on Student Affairs has heard nothing from the Council concerning this issue.

I believe that a lack of initiative and coordination exists in the Student Council. This is but one example of many that point to the inefficiency of this organization.

John E. Henkel—'63

Let Me At 'Em

By John Feller

No little consternation was aroused in the last edition of the Greyhound, by my baby, "Let Me At 'Em." The few voices which were raised against the "space-filler" seemed to emit mainly from one direction. My friends of the opposition have eagerly said that constructive and not destructive criticism is warranted. Personally, I subscribe to the philosophy of that eminent writer and quasi-politician William Buckley (author of "Up From Liberalism") who maintains that there is no such thing as constructive criticism. The latter is a misnomer, and only an irrational man believes that such an animal could possibly exist.

At this point, I would like to express my thanks to those innumerable students who have taken such an interest in my article, and who have come to my support on many occasions during the last few weeks.

No Retraction

Regarding a recent letter posted by Mr. T. Kenny Gray, the President of the Student Body, I would like to point out that the writer made one error. I did not then and will not now retract any statement which appeared in the original column. The fact still remains that the story was revealed by a member of the Council itself. If for no other reason than this, no retraction will be forthcoming.

Goal Accomplished

"Counsel For Council" was written to stir up student interest in their governing body. In addition, it was the hope of this writer to encourage the duly-elected members of the Council to take some positive steps forward. From the interest which both the students and the officers of the Council have exhibited as of late, it looks as if I may have succeeded.

Red Hats and Top Hats

In a recent copy of TIME magazine (January 27, 1961), an article appeared on His Eminence, Francis Cardinal Spellman, and the controversial subject of federal aid to education. An old wound, which had never really healed, was reopened by the outspoken liberal Archbishop of New York. The Cardinal charged: "It is unthinkable that any American child be denied federal funds because his parents chose for him a God-centered education."

The magazine pointed out that over 11% of all U.S. schoolchildren are educated in Catholic schools. In addition, President Kennedy is urging the spending of more than $9 billion as part of his "king-sized federal aid to education." Answered Kennedy sharply: "No comment."

It is apparent that one of the thorns in the new President's side is the controversial Cardinal. We can expect any day now to see Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt throw her two cents in.

Hats Off

Having had the good fortune to be permitted to write on the Greyhound for half a year, I would like to extend at this time my personal thanks and best wishes to my "late" Editor-in-Chief, Bob Reiter. I can blame you now for what I am. Good luck, Bob, now and always.

the Watchdog

Now that the "Week of Truth" is over, Loyola students will be taking it easy for a few months and No-Doze stock will again plunge into the loss column. And to those happy Freshmen who made it through the exams, we say, "Wait until May."

Speaking about exams, Doctor Boyle's students would like us to remind her not to trouble herself with hanging up her conditions in the future. Instead, Doc, just pin up your roll book.

We think that the referees that we had at the last Mount Saint Mary's game were patients of Robert Frost's optometrist.

With the changing of the guard on the Greyhound staff this week, the Watchdog feels that it is losing one its greatest sources of campus humor, Rol Sturm. The affable senior, though he came a few votes shy of making Who's Who, has the Dog's vote if anyone ever starts a "What's That?". Rol, it can truly be said, is the prime example of the self-made man. This is just another horrid example of the products of unskilled labor. Goodbye, Rol, from all of us to all of you.

Shane and Aaron would like to warn the campus tree cutters to stay away from the trunks.

Confidential to Mr. McDermott: You could try re-issuing last year's with a new cover.

We understand that the History Department is going out of its way to make the Soph students become very well-read. However, it seems to us that something is very amiss when the New York Public Library begins calling for lending privileges.

P.A.G.

The Greyhound Salutes Dennis Smyth

As sure as the swallows return to Capistrano, every year on March 17th, a green, over-sized leprechaun will appear in the Loyola College cafeteria. If you have ever pondered the identity of this person, his name is Dennis Smyth and his unconventional and controversial behaviour covers a very talented, somewhat avant-garde personality. Enrolled in one of the college's most difficult courses, A.B. Pre-Med, Dennie has done well scholastically, with the few exceptions which plague the average student. Besides the regular requirements for his course, he followed extra Latin courses, one of the few students to do so.

Play Mate

Outside class, Dennie has displayed great talent in extra curricular activities. He is president of the Mask and Rapier Dramatic Society. His acting abilities have been demonstrated in past performances such as "Death of a Salesman," "The Lady's not for Burning," "Cocktail Party," "The Man Who Came to Dinner," and "Every Man."

Denny relaxes in cafe.

Acting, however, is not his only talent as was evidenced by his excellent direction of "The Male Animal." Mr. Smyth is also president of the Classics Academy and a member of the current "Who's Who in American Colleges."

Future Plans

In the future, Dennie plans to attend medical school. No doubt, both his good marks and his extra-curricular excellence will aid him both in medical school and his later life.

To say that Denny will be soon forgotten would be a misquote in any man's language. His excellent job in the Presidential debates, his work with the Dramatics Society, and his color, if nothing else, will make him remembered long after his departure to those who have known him.

Denny in the cold outdoors.

F SMITH

"Well Father, I thought maybe I would need it for your exam."

Harbor Lights

Anyone who went to New York or "Fort Liguordale," Florida during last week's long weekend should have stayed there, especially if they want to do anything this weekend. Anyone who didn't go away should go now.

This gives some idea of what's in the lights this weekend--not too much. The near future, however, is somewhat brighter. But don't get over enthusiastic.

Capital Capades

In Washington, D.C. the Uline Arena presents the Ice Capades with their traditionally fabulous shows. Other places may also be found there with interesting entertainment.

For high-brow entertainment you can take your date to the Lyric to see "La Boheme," which does have some excellent music in it. This starts at 8:15 tonight and tomorrow night, February 3 and 4.

Disneyland

There are, at any rate, quite a few movies in the city--some tending in the opposite direction. Walt Disney's "Swiss Family Robinson" is the newest film in town and it's distinctly Disney. "Exodus" and "Spartacus" are the two biggest spectacles; the arty set may prefer one of the three art theatres.

The old stand-by neighborhood movie theatres will be standing by waiting for those who can find nothing better to do. "Can-Can" is one of the most popular movies currently playing at the neighborhood theatres.

Buster from Broadway

As for the brighter future, Shelley Berman and Roger Williams will be coming to this area along with Carlos Montoya and Van Cliburn. Also, opening at Ford's on Monday, February 6, is the musical comedy hit, "Once upon a Mattress," which ran on Broadway for two seasons. Dody Goodman and Buster Keaton will star in "Mattress" during its one-week engagement.

Well, since nobody reading this article did stay in New York and most of the lights in the city are out, just find a place to go and--bottoms up!

Review Of The Week

SPARTACUS

Last Saturday in answer to an invitation, this reporter saw Spartacus. Unlike Ben-Hur, this latest production should be considered a most unusual spectacular. In spite of its expense, the film has many attributes, and chief among them are its unusual plot, superb casting, and its technical superiority.

It seems as though the aphorism "Truth is stronger than fiction" applies here. The critics say that the plot is based on factual historical accounts of a revolution against the tyranny of Rome, and the effort of this revolution for freedom for the empire. Historically, it is accurate and educational from its explanation of the famed Roman political system with its barbaric gladiatorial contest to the revelation of the true position of the gods in Roman society.

As an epic, however, its greatest merit lies in its superb casting. With Kirk Douglas as Spartacus, and Jean Simmons as a Roman slave girl, the male and female leads were brilliantly filled. In their portrayal as the senior senator and the wealthy military leader, Charles Laughton and Sir Laurence Olivier, respectively, give the performances of their careers. In the role of the mercenary slave trader, Peter Ustinov is impeccable. Giving commendable performances also are John Gavin as Julius Caesar and Tony Curtis as Antonius.

H. B.

DAZZLING DAZE--Senior Warren Eberhardt and his date, Linda Zeigler, swing to the music of the "Delonaires" at the Prohibition Daze. Their attire is representative of the majority of costumes which were worn by many couples. Certainly, the most original (and least expensive) outfit was that exhibited by Wade Bowman, who came under the guise of Jack Dempsey.

An Archdiocesan Appeal

The Department of Education, Archdiocese of Baltimore has informed us of an effort to meet the growing need for qualified lay teachers in the Archdiocesan Schools. The situation is this: Approximately one out of every four teachers in the Catholic schools now is a lay teacher. Within this decade, it is believed that one out of every two teachers will be a lay teacher to give us a 50% lay instruction. In the 1970's the trend points to a two to one lay teacher lead. With these figures before you, it should be easy to understand why we are concerned about both the quality and quantity of our future Catholic teachers.

Rev. James Donohue, Ph.D., Superintendent of Schools for the Archdiocese, is issuing a clarion call to Catholic college graduates to investigate the field of lay teaching in our schools. The students do not have to have a teaching degree; an A.B. is the only requirement, though additional psychology courses or teaching courses would be helpful. A new salary scale for lay teachers is being formulated. This, in addition to the discipline and atmosphere in the Catholic schools, will, we hope, help us in securing college graduates to meet our need. Anyone desiring further information may address all inquiries to the Department of Catholic Education, Archdiocese of Baltimore.

Seminar Set In Topology

Beginning this semester, the Mathematics Department will initiate a seminar in Topology, held each Tuesday from 2 to 4 p.m. in room L203.

Conducted by Mr. Strauch, Mr. Kammel and Dr. Weigman, the course will be attended by some of the juniors and seniors majoring in math. All faculty members are also invited to attend.

Two For Topology

Format for the course will be 1. a lecture the first hour by one of the instructors, and 2. an elementary research paper delivered by each student, followed by questions, during the second hour.

Mr. Strauch will treat of the Theory of Sets and of Topology; Mr. Kammel will discuss the Integral from a topological viewpoint, and Dr. Weigman's topic is Physical Applications of Topology.

A Cryptic Account

By T. Kenny Gray, Student Council President

Much concern has been expressed recently about the activity of the Student Council. The question echoing in the cafeteria is: "What has the Student Council done?" The "cafeteria cowboys" are quick to answer that little or nothing has been done. To offset such skeptical replies we ask you to consider this cryptic account of our actions thus far:

Senior Class Secretariat--NDM social program--constitutions of activities--Freshmen Elections--student assembly--internal reorganization by revision of by-laws and ordinances--requested that of tests and assignments for the semester--requested that the Dean of Men should not give double cuts for absences immediately prior to the Christmas holidays--students enrolled in Teacher's program can take elective courses in the Evening College without paying extra tuition--tests or test marks will be returned within two weeks after the test--library privileges at Mount Saint Agnes which were revoked are now re-instated for Loyola students--cancellations because of weather will be broadcast over one station to avoid confusions--clarification of the Administration's policy on teacher's lateness for class, i.e., students may leave any class after 10 minutes if the teacher has not arrived and cuts will not be incurred--investigation of the Yearbook, clarification of its status and organization.

The Student Council is the organ of the students and serves as a "mouthpiece" for the students. If the Council is deserving of blame, it follows that the students themselves are equally deserving of blame because they have not directed their views to their representatives. Allow me to cite an example. At the student assembly the students were requested in understandable terms to tell their representatives how they felt about First Friday Mass attendance. It made no difference to us whether their opinions were pro or con. At the following Council meeting a poll was taken to determine the extent of the students' response. Only five bothered to express themselves on this controversial topic. Where does the blame truly lie?

The primary purpose of the Council is to express the sentiments of the students on matters of common concern to the members of the college. However, if the students wish to divert their expression to a school publication, they are moving one step farther from action.

We are aware that we can do better; our past mistakes will be a painful reminder. We stand on our record as proof of our efforts and we pledge that we will continue to do our best to promote the common good of the students of Loyola College.

New Editors Take Over

will assume the duties of his assistant.

With the coming of a new semester the Greyhound will receive a new faculty moderator also. Father Lawler, S.J., the former moderator, was forced to resign, due to an overloaded schedule. He has served as moderator since the resignation of Mr. Jon O'Brien, S.J. who returned to Woodstock College to complete his study in the seminary.

New Moderator

Besides serving on the Greyhound, Father Lawler is moderator of the Glee Club, moderator of the Loyola Associates, and an Assistant Professor of Theology. Father Lawler will be replaced by Father Conlin, S.J. who is an Assistant Professor of Sociology. We, of the Greyhound, wish to express our sincere appreciation for Father Lawler's enduring service.

Retiring Editors

The retiring Editor-in-Chief, Bob Reiter, is a senior Business Administration major. He has served on the staff for three and one half years. Tim Himmelheber, a senior math major, is the retiring Managing Editor. The former Features Editor was John Quinn, a senior Economics major, and Rol Sturm is the past Sports Editor, and a senior Accounting major. Larry Parr, a senior Economics major, is the retiring Business Manager. Each of these students leaves the Greyhound staff. We are deeply grateful to them for their many hours of untiring service and loyal devotion.

Additional Revisions

The beginning of the spring semester marks the first complete year of the weekly publication of the Greyhound. In addition to continuing the four-page issue, the new staff is planning many additions and revisions to the paper in an effort to facilitate a more interesting and complete coverage of Loyola life. Among these additions is the planning of a monthly six-page issue.

Needed Additions

The Editor-in-Chief wishes to remind the students that all are welcome to join the paper as writers of news, sports, and features. There is also an urgent need for typists. Anyone having news items of general interest to all students is asked to kindly contact the Greyhound office.

The editor also said that due to academic difficulties, the sports staff is seriously deficient. Therefore, in order to continue the publication satisfactorily, increased membership is anticipated.

Spot News

should consider seriously for this coming holy season of Lent.

January Change

Among the news contained on the first page, the article concerning the change in staff might have raised a question. "Why change the staff in the beginning of the year instead of June like other activities?" The only explanation available is: with the heavy burden of editorship the outgoing seniors find this activity very burdensome. The secondary reason is the convenience of having the new editors by the retiring editors at this break.

Ad for Ads

Anyone interested in selling ads for the yearbook should contact Buck Effinger in the bookstore. He will supply the necessary application blanks. Remember, there is a guaranteed 10% commission.

Alumni Banquet

Beginning at 6:30 p.m., on February 14th, the Loyola College Alumni Association will hold its annual banquet in the Andrew White Center. Maurice Bozel, class of '55, is serving as general chairman of the event. This year's principle speaker will be the Honorable Thomas B. Finan, Attorney General of the State of Maryland. Among Mr. Finan's achievements are his appointment as delegate to the National Democratic Convention in 1956 and 1960, and he is the past Secretary of State for Maryland.

Languages Discussed

Sister Margaret, the Chairman of the Modern Language Department of St. Joseph's College, speaks on the topic, "Tapes and Records in Language Learning," as Mr. Colimore, the Chairman of the Modern Language Department of Loyola, listens attentively. On January 27, at 4:00 p.m., the Rev. James Donohue, Ph. D., the Superintendent of Schools of the Baltimore Archdiocese, gave the opening address in the Andrew White Student Center. Over 100 teachers from Maryland attended this conference.

GREYHOUND SPORTS

Darrell Russell
Sports Editor

Everyone is now involved in the second semester, most with clean slates and all with determined efforts for improvement. The athlete has a determined effort for improvement in his marks, but he cannot have a so-called clean slate. He must devote his afternoons towards his physical aspirations.

Harder to Study

Therefore, with this in mind, it is noteworthy to consider that his task is measurably harder than that of the average student. After exhausting his afternoons, he wearily trudges home to prepare his class work. We can appreciate his grades as, by far, harder achieved than the average student's grades.

Support Events

Considering such, it is fitting to call the student body to the task of manifesting appreciation for the endeavors of the athlete, who strives to better our school.

Thus if the students support their teams by attendance, at games, we have achieved a certain amount of school spirit.

Mind and Body

However, while the endeavors of the athlete merit support they also set an example. The athlete is developing his body as well as his mind. This is an overlooked facet of the well being of many a student.

More specifically, it would show quite an increase in school spirit if there were better turnouts for the teams.

New Goal

Loyola is blessed with ten sports. Athletic Director Lefty Reitz has often said, "All who try hard enough to make a team and who possess a certain degree of ability will make the team."

Thus may I stress a twofold desire for the new semester in reference to athletics: greater support by attendance at games and turnouts for Hound teams.

Charlie O'Donnell—the Hounds' aggressive, colorful little man.

Intramural Items

By Sam Levin

The intramural basketball season got off to its start with two games on January the 11th. In one game, Murphy's Pagans defeated the Upsetters by the score of 38 to 19. Phil Piasecki was the games high scorer as he contributed 10 points to the Pagan's cause. Denny Burke and Pat Schenning each totaled six points to deadlock as leading scorer for the upset--Upsetters.

Mavericks Win

In the other game, the Mavericks, a freshman team, completely massacred the Bowlers by the margin of 49 points, 69 to 20. The mavericks were led by Danny Kemper, ex-Towson Catholic star, who tallied 18 points. Everyone on the Maverick's nine man roster scored at least twice in contributing to this victory.

Football?

Returning to a sport almost nearly forgotten by all at this time, there is still some football going on. In fact, the championship game between the Houndogs and Moleskins has yet to be played and will take place on the first available clear day.

INTRAMURAL ACTION—Intramural basketball is once again underway, as evidenced by the fact that the Moleskins are on the court.

Hounds Meet Jays At Homewood Wed.

The Hound basketballers return to local action on Wednesday for an encounter with Johns Hopkins University at 8:45 p.m. on the Homewood campus. This will be the eighth conference game for the Hounds with four remaining to be played. The overall record for the team is 3-9, while the log in conference play is 3-4.

John Heagney has continued his hot pace as the leading scorer in the Mason-Dixon Conference with a 26 point average. The Brooklyn native's best game thus far in the campaign was a 32 point performance in the Catholic University game.

Most of the support has come from Ed Murn and Charlie O'Donnell. Murn, a senior, has aided with short jumps and rebound tap-ins as well as doing his fine job policing the boards. Charlie, a sophomore, has provided the aggressive spark and leadership for the squad. In addition Charlie's two-hand set shots keep the defense honest.

In three contests the week before the exams the Hounds came out on the short end of a 1-2 long. After whipping Towson, the Hounds travelled to Washington and met the Catholic University in a league affair. The Cardinals came from behind in the last quarter and nipped the outmanned Hounds. Two nights later, the Mount St. Mary's team revisited the Evergreen campus and romped through the stunned Hounds by thirty points. The Green and Grey kept close for a half, but then the Hounds couldn't cope with the Mounts' outside gunning.

Heagney was held down in the first half, but came back with a strong second half effort. Murn did his usual good job of rebounding, and O'Donnell and Torba showed that they will be strong assets to the club in the future.

Tankmen Face Tough LaSalle Here 7:30 P.M.

Grapplers Host Wm. & Mary Sat.

By Dick Cooke

After the long layoff due to exams and bad weather, Loyola's matmen will have more than their hands full with William and Mary tomorrow.

Undefeated

William and Mary is sporting an undefeated record thus far which includes a close but impressive victory over the ever-tough B.U. squad. The same B.U. team squeaked one out over Loyola earlier this season.

Gaining Experience

Looking back at past matches much improvement can be seen in Loyola's squad. Freshmen Milligan, Schillp, and Emmett, with some of that much-needed experience, can be counted on for the five remaining matches before the Mason-Dixon Tournament.

Added Respect

With the needed experience and the overall improvement of the team, Loyola should not be counted out tomorrow. Despite William & Mary's unblemished record, the Hound grapplers should make the match close and exciting. A good showing, especially a win, will give the Hounds added respect in their division.

This afternoon at 3 P.M. the Loyola swimming team takes on a very strong LaSalle squad. The meet, here in our own pool, will bring the Hounds natators face to face with one of the so called 'big time' teams.

LaSalle will easily be the toughest challenge to date for our also very fine team. It should be quite a battle. The outcome will show just how good we really are.

Actually the Hounds are right in the midst of a heavy weekend. Yesterday they traveled to Shepherd College.

The LaSalle Explorers defeated the Hounds last year by a score of 61-34. The Hounds will be out to avenge last years defeat and also continue their current winning streak.

The Hounds are undefeated this season and seen well on their way to the Mason-Dixon Championship. Their resounding win over American U. gave the Hounds all the impetus they need to go on to an undefeated season. American U. was a solid favorite to conquer the Hounds. In the first race an American U. swimmer got a cramp and the Hounds went on to win. This seemed to fire up the whole team, and they soundly trounced the Eagles by a score of 63-32.

A large crowd at the meet this afternoon will help the Hounds considerably as they try to extend their winning streak.
